I AM LEAVING THE U.S.

I went on a six day working vacation this past week to La Paz, Mexico. Guess whose boat was at the fuel dock down there? The answer in a minute. While there I overheard some Gringo's talking about how they were fed up with the corporate life back in the states. He worked for Cisco, and she was a real estate agent in the Southern California area. They had plans for eventually leaving the U.S. behind and moving to Mexico permanently.

I have been going to Mexico since I was eight years old. I was fortunate to have a father who had the spirit of adventure, and a mother that was happy to tag along. We crossed the border almost every other Saturday to watch the horses run at Agua Caliente racetrack in Tijuana. My good mother would also make sure that I went to church the next day.

Back then, I was busy inventing a system that would predict the final time that a horse would run. It was quite a formula. I was in my mid-teens at the time. I have been a number cruncher my entire life. Finally at the age of 19, I hit the pick six at Caliente. I had six straight winners using my system and I left the track with bundles of fifty dollar bills.

I believe it added up to about $26,000 overall for a $16 bet. Caliente closed a few years later, but it sure left me with some good memories. I really looked forward to those Saturday trips with Mom and Dad. Tijuana had some of the best restaurants that I have ever eaten at.

The original Caesar Salad was invented by Caesar Cardini at the Caesar Hotel restaurant on Revolucion in downtown T.J.

Caesar Cardini-The Culinary Genius behind the Caesar Salad!

I have one almost every day.

"THE ORIGINAL CAESAR'S SALAD"
(For 4 Personal)
3 Medium heads romaine lettuce,
chilled, dry, crisp;
Dash Worcestershire sauce;
Grated parmesan cheese, 5 or 6 tablespoons;
Croutons, about 1 cup.
Salt;
Garlic flavored salad oil about 1/3 cup
Wine vinegar, 1 to 2 tablespoons;
Juice of 1 1/2 lemon;
1 raw egg
Freshly ground pepper;

I will probably be chased down my mobsters from south of the border, but here it is, the original recipe! I just ate the card that this was typed on. I cannot disclose how I got it, but I have committed it to memory.

I prefer olive oil as opposed to salad oil. I put about ten crushed cloves of garlic into a good virgin olive oil, and always have it ready to pour into my big wooden Caesar Salad bowl at home.

We also went on a big family vacation every year, usually to Mexico. We were going to Cabo San Lucas back when it was a sleepy fishing village. Now it is basically San Diego South. We saw the iguanas in Puerto Vallarta, and the Mayan ruins in Cancun. I caught my first sailfish in Mazatlan and had it hanging on the wall of my room all through high school. It would watch me do my homework every night. Poor thing.

And while I have an affinity for Mexico, I am always glad to get back home to a lot of the conveniences that Mexico still lacks. It can be a great place to visit from time to time, however.

What does this have to do with investing? It has a lot to do with investing in 2014. In fact it is the overriding them in this week's newsletter.

But first the answer to the quiz above: Whose boat is that being fueled up in La Paz, Mexico?

Answer: This is the boat that Steve Jobs had built while he was still alive. I believe that his family still owns it. It was built to resemble an iPhone. It is one of the strangest boats that I have ever seen, but at the same time it is quite striking.

My reason for traveling to La Paz was to make all of the arrangements down there to park my boat for the upcoming fishing season. I hired a captain in San Diego to drive my old fishing boat some 1200 miles down to La Paz.

Along the way, he encountered 13 foot seas and 50 knot winds down around Magdalena Bay. I did not think that the old boat had it in her, but she made it in one piece. When I met him down there, he asked me if I was glad that I did not travel with him.

I told him that I had been dealing with 13 foot seas and 50 knot winds back in the mainland. They were piling up in Nasdaq bay and Point Internet. Luckily I saw them coming, but I still got caught in some of the lead up to the storm that was to hit later.

By the way, my old fishing boat is the one on the left, not the one on the right. When I grow up I want to be just like Steve Job's Venus. I would sure hate to pay his fuel bill, however. But then I guess that he can afford it.

The reason I bring up Mexico, is because the action in the market is LEAVING the U.S. and heading beyond our borders. This is a major transition that is taking place after a 2-3 year hiatus for the foreign markets. This flow of cash overseas will show up vividly in some screenshots from the app a little bit later in the newsletter.

Lets first look at the 13 foot seas and 50 knot winds that continue to hammer certain areas of the U. S. markets.

It is estimated that there are over one million cargo containers floating just underneath the surface of the oceans of the world. Every once in a while the market finds a few of them.

The biotech index is now down 20% from its late February high. It has finally landed on its 200 day moving average, however. But there are no guarantees that it will stop there.

The Internet Index is now down 16.2% from its early March high. It has now broke BELOW its 200 day moving average.

And the Social Media sector is down 22.4% from its early March high. It too has broken below its 200 day moving average-YELP!!!!

When people tell me that the market is barely down this year, I have to point out the sea containers like these that are lying just underneath the surface. If you own an index fund, you still have not hit any. But how did an index fund do in the 2007-2008 BEAR MARKET? They were down 50%.

It your choice, passive investing vs. active investing. Neither one of them will remove the pain that comes with the market from time to time. The market has now gone from 666 to over 1800. But, along the way there have been MANY bouts of pain.

The amateur sells and goes to cash. The wise investor endures a little pain, picks himself up, dusts himself off, and follows the money flow. How many times has Warren Buffett gone to cash during his investment lifetime?

I have many clients that are going through their first bout of pain since they have been with me. They are finding out whether or not they really have an aggressive growth risk tolerance or not. Aggressive growth offers greater rewards over time, but also comes with more volatility. That is why I say that you have to have at least a five year time horizon.

Only a few have decided to cry uncle completely. A few more have moved from an aggressive profile to a conservative profile. No problem. And a handful have called me up and read me "the riot act" to me. It is OK, I can take it. Unfortunately these are usually the investors that panic and change what they are doing EVERY TIME a correction in the market comes along.

I call this, "shooting yourself in the foot." Over time, they have little to show for their efforts. As for me, I have EXTREME confidence in my abilities to manage money, but you have to be comfortable with that person that you have trusted your funds with, however. In addition to this, NO money manager can remove all of the pain that comes with investing in the market.

The market is going to catch a cold from time to time. There is going to be a little discomfort.

The best medicine for market pain is knowing you have someone who is on top of your holdings each and every day. Having someone who is pro-active, and making big changes when the market makes big changes. Having someone who is not stuck in any ONE style of investing. Almost overnight the market has gone from a U.S. based go-go growth market to a Global based slow-slow value market.

It is still my observation that the money that is gushing out of last year's leaders is NOT leaving the markets. Instead, it is flowing to other areas of the market that have been left WAY BEHIND over the last few years. I am not the only investor who believes this. Listen to my interview from Thursday's show with Global Guru Nicholas Vardy.

Previously beleaguered Brazil is suddenly catching fire. It is up 25% during the same period of time that the U.S. leaders have been getting pummeled. You will notice a lot of Brazil showing up in my model portfolios. It has been about a three year absence.

Australia is breaking out. The country has a lot of natural resources which are also on the rise.

Hong Kong is breaking out...

As you can see, instead of getting depressed about what is going on in the U.S., I am getting excited to see what is going on overseas. I truly believe that this is the early innings of something. No guarantees here, but it sure looks promising!

Here is how we finished another VERY VOLATILE week.

While on the surface, American waters do not look too bad, I have shown you some of the under currents that are much, much worse. The Nasdaq is one sick puppy right now. More on that in a bit. Latin America has gone from last to first!

No more Montezuma's revenge. Now it is Aztec Gold that investors are after.

Let's begin this week's market analysis with my current ranking of the world indexes. I rank 66 different indexes around the world.

BEST two weeks ago

BEST last week

BEST this week

This screen has suddenly become the most important one of the week. Over the past two years, the U.S. has dominated the top spots and everything else was a distant second. I tend to like B+ or better. Plenty to choose from right now. I need to now start showing numbers 9-16 in addition to 1-8 as this is the area to watch closely right now.

9-16 This Week

By the way, where is the U.S. S&P 500 ranked right now? Number 33 out of 66!

Worst Indexes 2 weeks ago

Worst Indexes last week

Worst Indexes this week

Japan looks horrible. Also notice that the U.S. micro cap index has gone from the top to the bottom. As you can see, foreign investing is coming back into vogue. Let's hope that this trend sticks around for a while.

Here is this week's ranking of the 33 different asset classes that I follow:

Top 8 (3 wks. ago)

Top 8 (2 wks. ago)

Top 8 (This week)

In the space of just four weeks, this leader board has almost completely turned over after 15 months of being stuck in the same exact spot. We now have four B+ ranked asset classes. Pipeline stocks are on fire again. I have made a lot of money in this area in prior years.

Emerging Markets have also move up from the back of the pack to the front of the pack. The baton has been handed off. Let's see how far they can now run.

Here is the second tier of asset classes:

(9-16) Three weeks ago

(9-16) Last week

bb (9-16) This week

Here are my CURRENT bottom eight ranked asset classes:

Bottom 8 two weeks ago

Bottom 8 last week

Bottom 8 this week

Notice two of the former leaders that are now at the bottom of the heap.

Let's stop for a minute, and focus on the U.S. markets.

The S&P 500 is now below its 50 day moving average, after almost breaking 1900 just 6 trading days ago. The 20 day is still above that 50 day moving average. In my opinion, the S&P could very easily go down and test its 200 day moving average in the 1735 area. I am not quite ready to buy an inverse fund yet, but I am considering it. (SH) is the inverse S&P 500 ETF.

Let's next look at the Dow.

It looks about the same as the S&P 500. It could easily go down and test its 15,340 support area. (DOG) is the inverse Dow ETF.

I saved the worst for last. The Nasdaq...

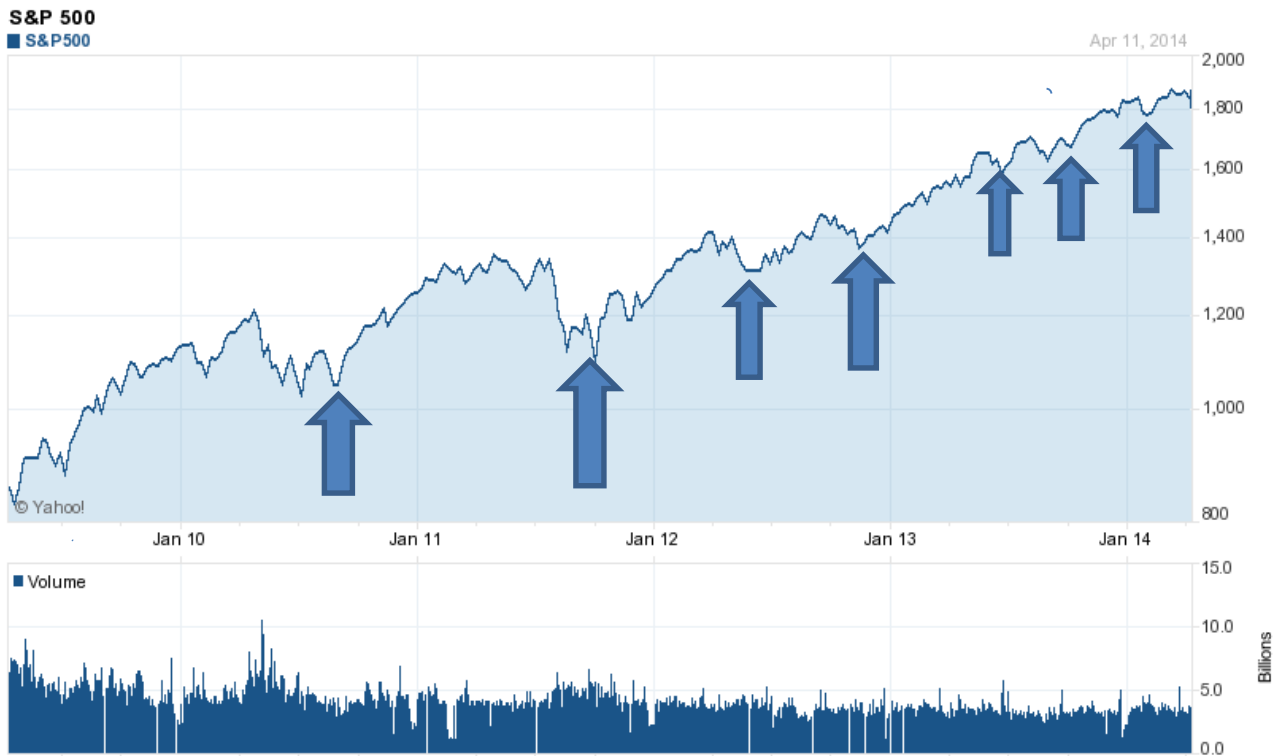

The Nasdaq led the world all of last year. Now it looks downright awful. There is hope ahead in the 3,968 area, however. This will be a very interesting area to keep an eye on. In my opinion it is too late to put in a short on the Nasdaq (QID).

Never say never however. A lot is riding on this current earnings season that just began!

If you are tempted to continue hanging on to losing stocks, you may want to watch my video.

Let's next check the health of the five year, one month old U.S bull market:

Stalled for now, but still climbing. Look at all of the painful moments along the way! I have kept you in the entire time. It will come to an end at some point in time, however. Then we will go in a completely different direction. Index investing -not!

Lastly we next look at the best sectors in the market. Remember-Best Indexes Now, Best Asset Classes Now, Best Sectors Now, and then on to Best Stocks Now™. I track sixty sectors on a daily basis. Here are the Best ones right now!

Top 8 three weeks ago

Top 8 two weeks ago

Top 8 this week

Again, we have gone from go-go-go sectors to slow-slow-slow sectors like Utilities, Energy, and REIT's. What do the the leading sectors have in common? LOW PE ratios. This all has happened during a very turbulent five week period of time!

We now have several B+ rated or better sectors to choose from.

I hope that these new trends stick around long enough to make some good money! Oil has made many FALSE moves in the past.

Let's look for sectors that are moving up the ladder right now.

#9-16 (3 weeks ago)

#9-16 (2 weeks ago)

#9-16 (this week)

There is a lot here that is very interesting. The market now revolves around emerging markets, energy, REIT's, utilities, and Natural Resources. Hopefully these areas will lead the bull throughout its final innings.

Here are this week's worst ranked sectors.

Bottom 8 Two Weeks Ago

Bottom 8 Last Week

Bottom 8 This Week

Check out the INTERNET SECTOR! It is now next to last! The biotech sector will be joining it soon. Here is how your broker-dealers are faring during this sell off. And their phones are ringing off of the hook!

THIS WEEK'S BOTTOM LINE

I think that you can see just how turbulent the last five weeks has been. As you know, I put up a yellow flag on January 3rd of this year after flying a green flag almost the entire 2013 year. Again, what began as an orderly rotation turned into spin mode very swiftly after a couple of market moving events.

I moved as swiftly as I possibly could, but I still got caught in the beginning of the spin. But, boy am I glad that I jumped ship when I did! I locked in some very large profits before things really started to spiral downwards. You can check for yourself what has become of many of the stocks since I sold them.

When I sent out tweets about my sells, I had many comments on how crazy I was to sell such great stocks. When sentiment changes on a stock, fundamentals go out the window. I don't care how good the stock is, or was.

But everybody is entitled to their opinion. That is what makes a market. If someone does not disagree with me, I would have not have anybody to sell to, or anybody to buy from.

I cannot guarantee that this move to foreign, energy, pipeline, REIT, and low PE stocks will continue, but it sure looks promising right now. It will be very discouraging if it fizzles out, but you have to go where the money is going. And right now, this is where the money is flowing. We have a big election here in the U.S. coming up soon. I don't think that the party in power would want a reeling stock market at that time.

I believe that we have now gone from the first few shaky innings of an economic recovery, to the middle innings where the stimulus really kicked in, now to the last innings which favor the previously mentioned areas of the market.

I don't know Jack.

I am kind of a seven year cycle kind of guy. Seven years of plenty and seven years of.....

Now here is the good news and the bad news.

First the bad news:

I believe that the selling in the previous leaders is not quite over yet. You can see from the charts and the market action that there is still more downside risk.

Now for the good news:

I also believe that the buying in overseas stocks is just getting underway.

If am wrong down road, then I will not be too proud to admit it. But this is what I currently see for the markets.

I am keeping the same flag configuration up as last week. I have gone from a yellow flag to red flag on the NASDAQ and other previous leaders of the market. There are areas of the U.S market that have green flag right now, however. Energy, Infrastructure, Utilities, and Pipelines, to name a few.

I am also flying a green flag on almost all of the International and Emerging Markets.

Nasdaq

Energy, Infrastructure, REIT's, MLP's, and Emg. Mkts.

Bill Gunderson's Aggressive Growth Model Portfolio

This is my most aggressive portfolio. It is designed for investors with long-term time horizons, seeking maximum growth. It is also my most VOLATILE portfolio. Investors need to be able to stomach as much as 10-20% swings from time in an aggressive style of investing. This portfolio goes anyone in in the world, wherever the action is. This portfolio was up 39.5% in 2013 after all expenses.

Bill Gunderson's Conservative Growth Model Portfolio

This model is made up of mostly large and mid-cap companies that I consider suitable for investors who have a conservative growth risk profile. Time horizon of at least 3-5 years would be appropriate. Investors need to be able to ride through swings of 10-18%.

This portfolio was up 23.85% in 2013. This is net of an annual mgt. fee of 2.0% and all $7 trades. This portfolio is down

Bill Gunderson's Income & Growth Model Portfolio

This portfolio is for investors seeking Income along with the possibility of Growth. This is a good mix for retirees who are seeking a CD alternative-albeit with greater risk. This is my MOST CONSERVATIVE portfolio. Still, investors need to be able to handle a 10-15% swing. This portfolio currently has an average yield of 3.2%.

Bill Gunderson's 401-K/College Fund Model Portfolio

Everyone has different choices to them in their 401-ks. The choices basically fall into several broad categories however: Large Cap, Mid-Cap, Small-Cap, Govt. Bond, Corp. Bond, Inflation Protected Bond, International, Emerging Market, and maybes sectors like technology, natural resources, etc.

I have added a number of mutual funds to my Best Stocks Now database that are representative of the various categories of funds that are available in most 401k plans. I grade them on a daily basis. I am almost done with my BEST MUTUAL FUNDS NOW app. It will have over 6,000 mutual funds in it.

If you have a wide selection of mutual funds in your plan, here is my current recommendation. This portfolio was up 31.33% in 2013 (net of all fees and trading costs).

It is now down

Bill Gunderson's Trading Account (new)

This is Bill Gunderson's actual trading account. I deposited $25,000 into it on 3/21/14 and went shopping. I have sent out a tweet on every trade I have made since. For the most part, these stocks are too small or too thinly traded for my managed accounts. This is not a day-trading account. I am looking to bag some big winner, while keeping a short leash on my positions.

THIS IS MY MOST AGGRESSIVE ACCOUNT. IT IS A VERY HIGH RISK, SPECULATIVE ACCOUNT. BIG LOSSES COULD OCCUR.

I have uncovered many big winners using my app in the past from amongst the low-priced stocks in it. I have wished that I would have been able to buy them. Now I am. This is a VERY aggressive and speculative account. I use all visual on charts, no sell-stops.
