THE MARKET LOVES YELLEN

The stock market finally had its first date with the new Fed Chair, Janet Yellen. It seems to have went well.

They both like long walks on the beach...

Jazz Trios...

Sunday Brunch...

And a healthy stock market!

Note the healthy rebound in the market over the last six days. This comes about one week after it broke its short-term support level.

It would seem that the new Fed Chair is going to pick up right where the former Fed Chairman left off.

Could it be that Ms. Yellen will be even more kind to the market than Gentle Ben?

Wait a minute. I remember Gentle Ben. It was one of my favorite TV shows.

Gentle Ben was a bear...

Ben Bernanke has been on the side of the bulls...

No, this is not A-Rod's doctor!

Let's change the subject real quick...

Let's not forget that despite a shaky start to the year, the almost five year old BULL MARKET is still well intact.

Nobody can argue that the primary trend of the chart shown above is still UP.

The BEARS have been wrong for almost five years now.

Oh, we have had several corrections like the current one along the way, but I have kept you in the market since S&P 500, "666" back in March of 2009.

Having said that, we do know however, that one day this Bull will end and Gentle Ben the Bear may not be as kind to us as he has been in recent years.

That is why I am always on high alert looking out for signs of a bear beginning to come out of hibernation.

I like to always keep one foot in the door, and one foot out of the door.

Episodes like 2001-2001 and 2008 can be hazardous to your wealth.

That is why I constantly am watching the overall health of things like the Dow Jones Industrial Average. Here is how the patient looks this week.

After two tests of its 200 day moving average in the last four months, and a fairly significant stumble in January, the Dow seem to be back on its feet for now. It is still on a short-term sell signal, however. Its 20 day moving average is still below its 50 day moving average.

All of these tests take something out of it, however. The Bull could be weakening.

I started warning you in late 2013 that there was no way the market was going to meet or exceed 2013's performance of about 29%.

The law of averages have a way of catching up with you.

In addition to this the FED is now in tightening mode as opposed to loosening mode.

But despite everything seeming to be love and roses with Yellen right now, we still other things to worry about.

Let's begin with China...

iShares China Large-Cap ETF

Investor's love affair with China (FXI) ended in late 2010 and their market has been in gradual decline ever since. Notice the extreme divergence between our market and theirs...

iShares China Large-Cap ETF

How long can this go on before China starts to drag down our market?

As you can see, the Emerging Markets have been more in line with the China market, than our market over the last several years.

Vanguard Emerging Markets ETF

■ VWO

Markets in Brazil have been cut in half over the last three years!

iShares MSCI Brazil Capped Inde

■ EWZ

Yikes!!!!

So even though one big unknown (called Yellen) has been removed from the market for now. We still have plenty to worry about. But then, we always do.

You can see from our markets and the Japanese market that massive government stimulus does work!

I just don't think that our market is going to hit 72 homeruns again this year.

The leading index in the world right now, continues to be the Nasdaq. It came roaring back from its spill below its 50 day moving average this past week.

As you can see, if the Nasdaq were to test its 200 day moving average like the Dow just did, it would be quite a drop-clear down to 3800.

This event will occur at some point in the future, but at least for now we seem to be out of the woods.

Also note however, that the Nasdaq is now running into resistance at the 4,246 level. Next week could be a pivotal week for the index.

I think that we could see some consolidation of recent gains this coming week.

But you know my thoughts on market predictions...

I TAKE IT ONE DAY AT A TIME,

ONE ASSET CLASSE AT A TIME,

ONE SECTOR AT A TIME,

AND ONE STOCK AT A TIME!

Here is how the market fared this past week...

As you can see, it was a sweetheart of a week. I put a lot of cash back to work this past week. More on that in a bit.

Here is where the major asset classes now stand year to date:

The S&P 500 is still slightly negative on the year and the January Effect is not in our favor this year.

The Nasdaq is now positive once again, while the 2013 winner (U.S. small cap stocks) continue to stumble coming out of the gate in 2014.

Emerging Markets are down about 5% year to date, while Latin America is down 7.3%.

The Bond Market has had a decent rally so far in 2014, but it is a sucker's rally in my opinion.

I BELIEVE THAT INTEREST RATES ARE HEADED HIGHER. I HAVE KEPT YOU OF BONDS FOR THE LAST 15 MONTHS.

Let's now look at my CURRENT RANKING of the 34 different asset classes that I track on a daily basis:

The leaders continue to be dominated by equities. The tech-heavy Nasdaq continues to lead the pack.

Small-cap U.S. stocks, which were the place to be last year have come under a bit of fire recently.

We next check Asset Classes 9-16 to see if anything interesting is going on there.

Being SHORT the U.S. stock market is still the worst place to be. Janet Yellen is no friend of the bears.

I have kept you out of emerging markets for over two years. They still look poor. Gold is finally starting to heat up again. I have kept you out of gold for over eighteen months, but it is beginning to catch my eye.

Gold is flashing a short-term BUY signal, but many rallies have failed over the last three years.

Gold would have to break through 1380 in order to really get my attention. Silver is also starting to wake up, but I still have little interest.

It has been basically just two sectors that have been leading this market for the last 17 months! The Internet Sector and the Healthcare Sector (more precisely biotechs and drug stocks). This is where I have had my investor's money parked, and this is where I remain parked.

Look at how much the Biotechs have outperformed the S&P over the last 17 months!

How much longer will it last? It ain't over until it's over!

And Spring Training is just around the corner!

Emerging markets and commodity linked sectors continue to do VERY poorly.

Here is this week's BOTTOM LINE. One big worry (Yellen) is now behind us for now. The markets have rebounded sharply over the last several days.

I ended 2013 at 100% invested. I had a great year in 2013, but I began locking in some huge profits at the beginning of this year.

When it was all over, I found myself with 60% cash sitting on the sidelines. That is the biggest pile of greenbacks that I have had in the last five years.

I have since put a lot of that cash back to work for now.

It will be interesting to see if the markets back off, or break out to new highs, once they hit upcoming resistance levels.

I AM GOING TO KEEP THE YELLOW FLAG FLYING FOR NOW. I AM JUST NOT READY TO SOUND THE ALL CLEAR SIGN YET.

MY CURRENT OVERALL CASH LEVEL IS NOW ABOUT 38%.

It is also important to remember that the almost five year old bull is still intact.

Bill Gunderson's Model Portfolio for Investors seeking Aggressive/Moderate Growth.

This is my most aggressive portfolio. It is designed for investors with long-term time horizons, seeking maximum growth. This portfolio is made up mainly of small and mid-cap stocks with superior growth potential. This portfolio was up 39.5% in 2013 after all expenses.

This portfolio is up 0.72% YTD. I

Bill Gunderson's Model Portfolio for Conservative Growth Investors:

This model is made up of mostly large and mid-cap companies that I consider suitable for investors who have a conservative growth risk profile. Time horizon of at least 3-5 years would be appropriate. Large cap stocks underperformed small caps in 2013.

This portfolio was up 23.85% in 2013. This net of an annual mgt. fee of 2.0% and all $7 trades. This portfolio is up 1.56% YTD.

This portfolio is for investors seeking Income along with the possibility of Growth. This is a good mix for retirees who are seeking a CD alternative-albeit with greater risk. This portfolio currently has an average yield of 4.2%.

This portfolio was up 21.75% in 2013. It is now up 30.05% since its August 5, 2011 inception. This works out to an annualized rate of 10.96%.

This portfolio is DOWN 0.74% YTD.

401-K/College Mutual Fund Model Portfolio

Everyone has different choices to them in their 401-ks. The choices basically fall into several broad categories however: Large Cap, Mid-Cap, Small-Cap, Govt. Bond, Corp. Bond, Inflation Protected Bond, International, Emerging Market, and maybes sectors like technology, natural resources, etc.

I have added a number of mutual funds to my Best Stocks Now database that are representative of the various categories of funds that are available in most 401k plans. I grade them on a daily basis. I am almost done with my BEST MUTUAL FUNDS NOW app. It will have over 6,000 mutual funds in it.

If you have a wide selection of mutual funds in your plan, here is my current recommendation. This portfolio was up 31.33% in 2013 (net of all fees and trading costs).
